Ohio Demos Doubt GOP Will Spring Quick Remap Plan

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — House Minority Leader John McDonald does not believe a special session of the legislature will be called this year to draw new congressional district lines. "Somehow, I just don't think they'll do it," the Newark Democrat said Thursday after learning Republican leaders are considering such a move.

McDonald admitted there is little he or anyone else could do about it if Republicans want a special session. He alluded to some legal problems, but would not say what they might be.

The Senate majority leader, Theodore M. Gray, also doubts the legislature will be called back.

He said a special session would be "impractical" because the official 1970 census figures are made available.

And because of appeals and challenges of the census, Gray said, "it may be the middle of next year before these figures are made available."

The redistricting must be made on the 1970 census figures. A preliminary census report indicates the state's congressional delegation will drop from 24 to 23 members.

Republican congressmen reportedly are pressing to have the boundaries changed before Gov. elect John J. Gilligan, a Democrat, takes office in January.

Congressional districts usually are drawn to favor the party in power. Republicans will control the legislature, but Gilligan could veto any plan he doesn't like.

It takes three-fifths majority to override a veto — more votes than the Republicans will have with margins of 54-45 in the House and 20-13 in the Senate.

Republicans now have majorities of 64-35 and 21-12 and a Republican in the governor's chair.

House Speaker Charles F. Kurfess, R-4 Perryburg, said Thursday a special session could be called next month to redraw the congressional lines.

"We would probably do everybody a favor by getting it out of the way now," he said. "Gilligan should thank us but they (Democrats) will probably scream to high heaven."

Rhodes said his cabinet officer will work with Gilligan's appointees to make the transition smooth.

Gilligan was accompanied to the meeting by James Friedman, a Cleveland attorney prominently mentioned as probable patronage chief in the Gilligan administration, and a plain clothes highway patrolman assigned to the governor-elect by Rhodes.

Italy Decides To Recognize Red China

NATO Ally Joins
With Canadians
In New Policy

ROME (AP) — Italy, the Mediterranean anchor of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, recognized Communist China today.

The defection of another U.S. ally from the anti-Peking camp was announced after a meeting of the Italian Cabinet at which it ratified the agreement negotiators for the Italian and Chinese governments concluded in Paris Thursday after 21 months of arduous give and take.

Nationalist Chinese diplomats in Rome and Milan were packing to leave for Formosa. Officials in Taipei said the Nationalist embassy in Rome and the consulate general in Milan would be closed and the staff withdrawn within two weeks.

The break was not expected to affect relations between the Vatican and President Chiang Kai-shek's regime. The Nationalists maintain an ambassador to the Holy See, and a papal pronuncio is assigned to Formosa.

The shift also is not expected to affect Formosa's small trade with Italy, consisting largely of motorcycle and small electronic parts. The Nationalists still maintain trade relations with Canada despite Ottawa's recognition of the Chinese Communist government on Oct. 13.

Italy is the seventh member Treaty Organization to come to terms with Peking. The others are Britain, France, Canada, the Netherlands, Norway and Denmark.

Government sources said the recognition could have come several months earlier had it not been for the uncertain political situation in Italy. Italy changed governments four times while the negotiations were going on.

U.S. Voter Holds Middle Viewpoint

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American voter proved himself in Tuesday's election to be a middle-of-the-roader who's not swayed easily to the right or left, says voting analyst Richard Scammon.

"He's not a yo-yo," said Scammon. "He does not change his ideas quickly. He can be moved, but not abruptly up or down in a fly-by-night manner."

Both the Democratic and Republican parties should take heed, he said, and aim toward the "new party of the center" in the 1972 presidential election.

"I'd say it's up for grabs," he told the Women's National Democratic Club.

"Some maintain there is an emerging Republican majority. I don't think we'd agree with that," he said, referring to his partner, Ben J. Wattenberg, in the Elections Research Center.

The two men wrote "The Real Majority," a widely read book that said the American electorate preferred middle of the road candidates.

In 1972, he predicted, voters' allegiances will be about the same. He wouldn't say whether President Nixon would win a second term, or whether Spiro T. Agnew would stay on as vice presidential candidate, but he did compare Agnew to an infantry second lieutenant, getting the front-line flack and risking his survival by being susceptible to straying too far out and antagonizing the center.

Republicans now have majorities of 64-35 and 21-12 and a Republican in the governor's chair.

Military Panel Says LBJ Handled Viet War Badly

Mideast Quiet As Truce Continues

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Uneasy calm prevailed along the Suez Canal today as Egypt, Israel and Jordan extended their 90-day cease-fire. But Cairo declared it will not agree to another extension "under any circumstances."

The semi-official newspaper Al-Ahram said Egypt had accepted a 90-day extension of the truce "at the wish of the international community," but that any further extension would "serve Israel's goal in turning it into a permanent cease-fire."

Israeli Premier Golda Meir told a British television interviewer: "We hope that the longer the cease-fire lasts, the more difficult it will become for the Egyptians to begin shooting again."

"As far as Israel is concerned," said Deputy Premier Yigal Allon, "the cease-fire will continue as long as Egypt avoids taking military steps against us."

Jordan had announced earlier that it would continue to observe a cease-fire as long as its forces were not attacked.

Egyptian and Israeli forces along the Suez Canal were on the alert, but their guns remained quiet.

A military spokesman in Tel Aviv said Israeli troops had noted no unusual activity on the Egyptian side of the canal and were "sleeping much more comfortably than in the past."

The situation was also calm along the Jordan River separating Israel and Jordanian forces. Arabs in flowing robes strolled across the Allenby Bridge in both directions, stopping at each end for Jordanian and Israeli soldiers to check their credentials. Newsmen on the Jordanian side saw no Palestinian guerrillas within 20 miles. The area had been swarming with uniformed commandos a few months ago.

The cease-fire, part of a Middle East peace initiative sponsored by the United States, had been scheduled to expire at midnight Thursday. But after eight days of debate, the U.N. General Assembly on Wednesday adopted a resolution urging that the truce be extended and that Israel, Egypt and Jordan return to indirect peace negotiations with U.N. envoy Gunnar V. Jarring as go-between.

Those talks began Aug. 25, but Israel withdrew 10 days later, charging that Egypt had moved anti-aircraft missiles closer to the canal in violation of the cease-fire. The Israelis said then—and have repeated frequently since—that they would not return to the Jarring negotiations until the missiles are pulled back.

Egypt has been just as unyielding in insisting that the missiles were in the canal zone before the cease-fire started Aug. 7 and that none would be pulled back.

Southern Dems Retain Power

Chair 9 Of 16
Senate Panels

WASHINGTON (AP) — Southern Democrats—most of them conservatives—will continue to head nearly all the major Senate committees when the 92nd Congress convenes in January. These include Appropriations, Foreign Relations, Finance, Armed Services and Banking and Currency.

Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., will take over as chairman of the Labor and Public Welfare Committee—the only major Senate panel to change leadership as a result of this year's elections.

Williams succeeds another liberal, Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., defeated in the Democratic primary by Lloyd Bentsen, who then won the seat.

The Labor and Public Welfare Committee handles legislation in the fields of education, poverty, health and labor. Former President Lyndon B. Johnson said it originated more than 75 percent of all his Great Society measures.

Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., outranks Williams in seniority on Labor and Public Welfare and could have taken the chairmanship.

But Randolph said he decided to remain chairman of the Public Works Committee because of its great importance to his home state.

Public works handles the Appalachia program, which has funneled millions of federal dollars into the region, as well as bills dealing with federal highway aid, air and water pollution controls, and river, harbor and flood-control projects.

Southerners will continue to chair nine of the present 16 Senate standing committees.

Nixon's promise to share the information with consumers hasn't been carried out yet, however.

Nixon and congressional consumer advocates have traded charges of stalling and refusal to compromise on the legislative program.

"By demanding all or nothing, they have achieved nothing for the consumer," Nixon said of Congress last month.

Congressional opponents of the Nixon legislation counter by pointing to the hassle over the class action bill.

In discussing the class action fight, a White House spokesman said, "The point is we got it going and the previous administration didn't."

Claim Politics Often Put 1st By Leaders

WASHINGTON (AP) — A panel of high-ranking officers says the Johnson administration sometimes put politics first in Vietnam policy and ignored military contingency plans by not calling the reserves.

"Political, economic and social considerations in South Vietnam and in the United States led to extraordinary controls at the Washington level and to tight limitations on many specific resources, incremental funding, and the requirement for detailed approval of personnel ceilings and manning levels at times down to the unit level," the Joint Logistics Review Board said in a three-volume report made public Thursday.

"These controls and limitations had a major impact on logistic support in times of emergencies and surges in combat operations, and had an unstabilizing effect on long-term programs."

Although the board concerned itself mainly with logistics problems, it also was critical of the Johnson administration's decision to follow the system of resettlement used by the British in Malaya in the early 1950's.

"It was generally considered that if the successful British strategy could be emulated, the American effort could be limited and logistic support significantly reduced," the board said.

However, the panel said, in Vietnam, the United States was limited to a supporting and advisory role while the British in Malaya exercised governmental control.

The panel was headed by General Frank S. Besson, who was appointed last year by Deputy Secretary of Defense David M. Packard. Besson retired from the Army in September.

Besson's report is a rare event: open criticism by the military of the Johnson administration's handling of the war.

"The initial buildup (of U.S. forces in Vietnam) in 1955 was predicated on the premise that the conflict would be of short duration."

"Forces, mainly Pacific Command reserves, were deployed on a temporary duty basis with minimum in-country support and dependence on off-shore capabilities as a primary logistic base," the report said, adding that the "fallacy of temporary duty deployments soon became apparent."

The failure to mobilize the reserves, the report claimed, resulted in personnel shortages, particularly in logistics skills.

9 Rescued From Sunken Motor Vessel

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — Fifth District Coast Guard headquarters said today nine survivors of a 268-foot Bahamian motor vessel feared sunk in treacherous shoal waters off the North Carolina coast have been picked up from a raft. Eight persons were still missing.

A Coast Guard spokesman said the Rescue Coordination Center reported shortly before 10 a.m. today the nine survivors had been taken aboard by the Duke University research ship Eastward.

Coast Guard aircraft reported finding debris in the area given by the stricken Caribbean Mist as its position in its final radio message received by the Coast Guard about dark Thursday.

The vessel reported then her lifeboats had been smashed by 25 foot seas and she had only 10 minutes left afloat.

Two long range Coast Guard helicopters were dispatched to the area to assist in the search for other survivors.

The Coast Guard said 17 persons were aboard the Caribbean Mist. The names or conditions of the survivors picked up by the Eastward were not available.

South Viet Troops Open Offensive Inside Cambodia

SAIGON (AP) — Six thousand South Vietnamese troops advanced across a wide front in southeastern Cambodia today in a major new land, river and air operation.

Military spokesmen said no significant contact was reported in the first hours of the biggest drive in Cambodia since U.S. and South Vietnamese forces crossed the border last May.

A spokesman said the operation had three objectives:

1. To choke off the infiltration of North Vietnamese troops and supplies into South Vietnam's western Mekong Delta.
2. To destroy North Vietnamese bases rebuilt along the border since the allied drives last summer.
3. To ease the pressure on

Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital. Informed sources said some of the South Vietnamese forces probably would advance as far as Takeo, 40 miles south of Phnom Penh.

The drive was spread along about 100 miles of the Cambodian-Vietnamese border, down to the Seven Mountains region of the western delta. Informed sources said the North Vietnamese had increased their infiltration in this sector.

Other South Vietnamese troops have been sweeping through the Seven Mountains region since August, trying to root out the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong from the caves that honeycomb the area.

In a related development, military spokesmen announced that the U.S. destroyer Rowan had been moved to the Gulf of Siam to pound North Vietnamese positions below the Cambodian border.

The spokesmen said the destroyer's five-inch guns hammered caves on the Hon Chong peninsula 15 miles south of the border Wednesday, setting off 16 major secondary explosions and a series of fires that indicated hits on ammunition depots.

A Cambodian military spokesman in Phnom Penh said about 200 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces ambushed Cambodian troops west of the Angkor temples in northwest Cambodia, triggering an eight-hour fight. The spokesman said casualty figures were not available, but the length of the battle and the size of the ambush force indicated that government casualties could be serious.

Secret U.S. Spy Satellite Watches Russia, Red China

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Air Force today launched a secret spy satellite intended to provide almost instant warning of a long-range missile attack on the United States by the Soviet Union or Red China.

The satellite is to give a 30-minute warning of such an attack, doubling the 15 minutes that present systems give U.S. forces to prepare antimissile devices and launch bombers and missiles in retaliation.

A Titan 3 rocket thundered away from Cape Kennedy at 5:40 a.m. EST to propel the 1,800-pound spy satellite toward a near-stationary orbit about 24,000 miles above the Pacific Ocean.

The Pentagon clamped a security lid on the launching and made no advance announcement. A brief statement after liftoff said only that the rocket had been launched with an experimental payload.

For the first time in 15 Titan 3 launches over five years, newsmen were barred from viewing the launch from a press site at Cape Kennedy. However, information about the launching has been available for several days from unofficial sources.

Plans called for the satellite to be parked above the Pacific so it could be checked out by ground stations in California. Then it would be shifted by ground command to a permanent post above Southeast Asia.

From this position, the satellite's infrared sensors could detect the exhaust of rockets launched from the Soviet Union or Red China.

The United States has launched several missile detection satellites in the past, but most have been experimental. The satellite launched today reportedly was designed for operational capability early in 1971.

A second satellite may be launched in 1971 to provide as much as a 15-minute warning of submarine-launched rockets that would be fired closer to U.S. soil.

Termite Case To Go Before Jury Today

Jurors heard testimony again today as the Speakman vs. Buckeye Termite Co. trial went into its second day.

Ten witnesses — four for the defense and six giving evidence for the Speakman's — were on the stand in Thursday afternoon's session which carried over to Friday morning. Several experts in the field of termite extermination offered their opinions on termite infestation of the Speakman home in the Bloomdale Addition.

The Speakman's filed charges last year against Buckeye Termite, a Columbus pest control firm, claiming the company was negligent in inspection of their home in January, 1966. In two examinations within three months period, the Columbus company reported the house free of termites.

Positive termite damage was discovered in the spring of 1969. The local couple claims the termites were present at the time of the previous inspections and seek damages from the company in the amount of $3,500.

The decision is expected to be reached later this afternoon by the jury panel of Hildegard Nichols, Ronald McNeal, Sarah Grable, Bea Bach, William Camp, Ervin Leist, Harley Wells, Ben Nothman, Robert Tracey, William Wharton, Sophia Wilkins and Ruth Richards.

Easter Seal Unit Holds Meeting

The Pickaway County Easter Seal Society held its November meeting at headquarters, 108 Reber Avenue, Mrs. Elliott Mason, society president presided at the meeting.

Authorization was given for transportation fees and purchase of four pairs of special shoes.

Reports were given by Mrs. Richard Warren, Mrs. Manley Carothers and Mrs. Darrell Coverdell.

Mrs. John Kerns, delegate at the Ohio Society for Crippled Children and Adults Annual Meeting held recently in Columbus, presented a report.

She noted that the keynote speaker for the awards and appreciation luncheon was Jack Lesscoule of AVCO Broadcasting Corp. special services department. Other speakers were Clark Paradise, executive director of the Easter Seal Society of New Jersey and Dr. Effie Ellis, consultant to the American Medical Association in Chicago. Mrs. William Collins and Mrs. Mason also attended the meeting.

Richard E. Plum was re-elected to serve another three year term on the State Society Board of Directors at the annual meeting.

Mrs. Kerns and Mrs. Mason will be assisting at the Pickaway County Speech and Hearing Clinic this month.

Guests at the meeting were Mrs. Paul Frank and Mrs. Robert Cullums.

The next meeting is scheduled Dec. 1.

YMCA Notes And News

The YMCA has scheduled an Ohio Wesleyan vs. Dennison football game trip Nov. 14. A chartered bus will leave from the YMCA for Delaware at 11 a.m. and return to the Y at approximately 5 p.m.

Registration for the Saturday game trip can be made by calling the YMCA Office at 474-8621. Fees will be paid just before boarding the bus. Gra-Y dues can also be paid before leaving that day.

The YMCA Gra-Y Program is for boys 9 to 12 years of age. Clubs have been organized in the six Circleville elementary schools: Corwin, Alwater, Nicholas, Mound, High and South Court as well as Ashville, Williamsport, Jackson, Salt Creek, Pickaway and Washington Twp. Schools.

on's congressional critics also point to the bill setting standards for product warranties and guarantees. The Senate Commerce committee held its first hearings on proposed bills in January. The administration was invited to testify but asked for more time. It was March before the administration submitted its proposals. The warranty bill passed the Senate in July but has yet to clear committee in the House.

Two other administration bills, both introduced early this year, have yet to receive serious attention. One sets standards for product testing and the other requires a code number on drugs so doctors can identify it rapidly in case of overdose or side effects.

None of the five bills proposed by the administration is in final position for passage. If all fail this session, they would have to be re-introduced in January and new hearings held.

So far, the 91st Congress has enacted two non-Nixon consumer bills—one aimed at dangerous toys and the other permitting persons to keep merchandise sent unsolicited through the mail. Pending are bills limiting unsolicited credit cards and requiring child-proof closures on drugs and household products likely to be swallowed by children.

Television was originally developed for entertainment, but is now used in industry, in scientific research, and by the military forces.

Industrial television . . . monitors are used to keep check on furnace flames, water level in boilers, and heating of steel.

Scientific television . . . radio-active materials can be handled safely and easily from behind screened walls, and viewed by others on a television monitor. Delicate operations can be observed by students and doctors on the television monitor.

Military use for television . . . pilotless planes and missiles can be guided by watching their path on a television monitor. Instruments can be watched and recorded on rockets. Television is now being used for undersea exploration, to locate wrecks, observe the ocean bottom and study marine life.

The adult Sunday School will view the filmstrip "A New Sound In The Caribbean." Nazarene Young People's Society will meet 7 p.m. Sunday with groups for juniors, teens and young adults. The evening topic will be "Abide With Us."

Views On TV - Radio

NEW YORK (AP) — If any one thing in television provides rating insurance, it is a wedding. From time to time series languishing in the lower regions of the Nielsen roster have suddenly shot to the top 10 on the strength of a prepublicized wedding ceremony.

Thus this week's "Nancy" on NBC should gain some rating yardage. It is essentially a woman's show anyway, and on Thursday night the daughter of the president of the United States and her Iowa veterinarian marched down the aisle. Since the series is less than two months old, this was part of the master plan.

The program, however, stuck to an old pattern, describing the prenuptial nerves of bride and groom, accompanied by an enthusiastic laugh track.

"Coogan's Bluff," a two-year-old movie that inspired the recent six-part series, "McCloud," on television, will be broadcast on NBC Monday night, Nov. 23. Clint Eastwood plays a deputy sheriff from Arizona in New York to bring back a convicted murderer.

TV viewers who saw the film at theaters may be surprised, even disappointed, when they see the TV edition. The original contained a lot of violence and was pretty explicit about sex.

Hermínio Traviçass, who rides shotgun for the network in the area of taste, said that when the studio producing "Coogan's Bluff" offered it to the network, it was rejected as unsuitable.

"They took it back and worked over it," Traviçass said. "They eliminated some objectionable scenes, including one showing some topless performers, and they cut out some of the violence. All, it should be added, without doing anything to slow up the story."

The TV version will be about as long as the original: The studio restored some footage originally dropped to the cutting room floor.

The word now is that Andy Griffith will be the sole survivor of his CBS series when it is reconstituted after midyear. It is expected that he will be presented as the mayor of a small town near Mayberry, N.C.—the "Mayberry, R.F.D." cast will appear in the first episode. He will also acquire a wife, Lee Merriwether; a son; a daughter and a spinster sister.

And Jerry Van Dyke, his co-star of "Headmaster," will return to the nightclubs and await discovery by TV—again.

Cushing's Death Leaves Great Void

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Brusque, bulldozing and bighearted, Richard Cardinal Cushing was probably the best loved Catholic leader on the American scene, esteemed by Protestants, Orthodox and Jews as much as by members of his own Church.

His death this week evoked a wide and poignant "last hurrah" for the rugged, old Irish prelate of rasping growl and free-wheeling generosity.

"I don't pay any income tax and the money's not mine," he would say impulsively handing out a big check to some startled charity. "I just keep the money moving and don't own a dime."

He was a man of the people, one with them, crotchety, tender, joke-cracking, without a shred of pretense, his plain humanity making him a dynamo of interfaith brotherhood.

"I'll preach anywhere they'll let me in," he put it, and he made himself at home in Protestant pulpits, prayer meetings and synagogues long before it became the approved thing to do.

He gave the first imprimatur to a Protestant translation of the Bible, the Revised Standard Version.

As one churchman assessed him, he was "a kind of American John XIII," a Massachusetts version of the Pope who brought a new spontaneity, warmth and openness into inter-church life.

"Ah, Cushing of Boston," that Pope had exclaimed, embracing the tall, lantern-jawed old New Englander on their first encounter after John XIII became Pope.

It was a fitting appellation for this unconventional U.S. prelate, who couldn't actually be tagged by any labels, but who in a quarter-century as head of his archdiocese had left a unique imprint, an ecclesiastical "original" identifiable only by himself—Cushing of Boston.

"Of the two or three Popes I have known, Pope John was the only one who understood me—and I don't understand myself," he once said.

Although study in Rome is generally considered a prerequisite for hierarchical advancement, he never made it there, honing his churchmanship strictly in the American mold—a roughhewn provincialism that was part of his charm.

Garrulous, blunt and frequently sounding off unpredictably on issues of church and state, he restrained himself notably in the tense 1960 campaign when his close family friend, the late John F. Kennedy, won the presidency, the first Roman Catholic to do so.

"That was one time I fortunately kept my big mouth shut," he remarked later.

Living in Christian Fellowship

THE RESPONSIBILITIES OF BEING A CHRISTIAN

Scripture—Galatians 6:1-10.

By R. H. RAMSEY

THROUGH payment of a fee and/or dues, almost anyone can become a member of almost any organization or society. Military officers clubs accept any man in good standing as an officer of a particular branch of service. And, after some major achievement or accomplishment, one can be included in a "Who's Who."

Membership in the fellowship of the Lord, however, comes only through a living faith in Christ, plus moral standards which must be lived up to, love for others, interest for others, patience, humility, etc. No other group or society sets such high standards. A Christian is a servant of Christ and should be ruled by the Holy Spirit in body, soul and mind seven days a week, in church, business, privately and out in public. Many people think the Christian life and Christian ethic is fantastic, impractical, intangible, ethereal and totally divorced from the hard realities of daily living. Not so, says the Apostle Paul, delusive for the inferiority—real or imagined—of others is no measure of our own absolute worth. Instead of indulging in vain, subjective dreams we should honestly assess the quality and quantity of God's work in ourselves to determine whether we are more justified in rejoicing or repenting.

Helping the weak and lifting the fallen does not relieve a person from the responsibility of bearing his own burden. In the final judgment of God each will be held responsible for his own actions. We shall stand or fall according to our relationship to Christ and obedience to His commands. This is the solitary side of every Christian's life and remembrance of it should deter us from comparisons which ignore it and move us to help our brothers whenever, wherever and however we can. More, Christians should share their wealth of spiritual treasures with others so all may benefit.

There is an inviolate law, established at the Creation, that

GOLDEN TEXT

"Now therefore ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens with the saints, and of the household of God."—Ephesians 2:19.

and brings this truth down to bedrock in the closing verses of his letter to the Galatians.

Here the Apostle considers the relationship of Spirit-filled Christians to those who have fallen into difficulty or sin. Using the term "Brethren" to stress Christians' mutual relationship and responsibility, Paul urges that Christians adopt a spirit of meekness, rather than arrogance, in their attempts to bring fallen-away brothers back into fellowship. One should examine his own life honestly and objectively, for a false sense of righteousness or self-importance destroys one's influence in trying to restore the fallen and make it possible to bear another's burdens without a condescending or patronizing attitude.

It is as easy to be critical of another's accomplishments as it is hard to objectively evaluate our own. We are all prone to indulge in exultations based upon comparisons with others who we feel are inferior to ourselves. But such exultation is everything in Nature reproduces after its kind. This is equally true in the spiritual realm—and he who forgets it is fooling no one but himself. Men deceive themselves into believing that no matter what they do, the consequences will not be so bad after all; that no matter what kind of seed they sow, when the time comes they can shape the harvest to their liking. But the deeds of men bring harvest in kind. Those who sow gratification of physical desires and passions reap corruption and decay. Those who sow a spiritual life reap everlasting life.

One of man's greatest temptations is to become discouraged with doing good, especially when the results are not immediate and highly visible. However, just as there is a time for sowing, there is also a time for reaping and God is not unconscious of it. The harvest will be bountiful if we continue to faithfully sow good seed and do good works wherever the opportunity presents itself.

Trip To Nowhere

Timothy Leary may be a man with extensive experience in taking trips, but he has turned out to be a most unwelcome traveler.

Lebanon wouldn't let him stay. Syria and Jordan wouldn't even let him arrive. Egypt insisted that he leave promptly.

The Palestinian guerrillas disowned the suggestion that he was their guest. Somewhere, no doubt, the apostle of the drug cult and fugitive from a California prison farm will manage to find a haven. But, judging from the countries that have already turned him down, it won't be the paradise he seeks. And his welcome will be subject to instant termination.

It is difficult to think of a more appropriate person to be forced to learn the hard way that the "grass" isn't always greener on the other side of the fence.

According To Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Things we could do without:

City-written country music.

Real estate dealers who describe a quarter-acre plot as "an estate," and 1½-room apartments as "junior suites."

Discussions of world problems by politically illiterate movie stars.

Any new cocktails which try to marry the grape and the grain.

Hostesses who invite you to dinner and then serve a store-bought pizza pie.

Restaurant patrons who think it is a panic to mock the pidgin English of Chinese waiters.

Actors who think the quickest way to stardom is to imitate Cary Grant.

Hat check chicks who make a fellow feel like Benedict Arnold if he only has 20 cents in change to leave as a tip.

Rouge prints on a highball glass.

Saucer-sized sunglasses worn by girls who lack the ingenuity to find more interesting ways to attract attention.

That "one for the road."

College presidents who speak of their students as the hope of tomorrow but personally find them the despair of today.

Cemeteries with fanciful names such as "Final Gardens," "Everlasting Health," or "Gateway to Nirvana." (I'd rather be buried in one called "More to Come.")

Any "new" deodorant, toothpaste or laundry detergent put on the market only this morning to replace a deodorant, toothpaste or detergent that was "new" only the day before yesterday.

Women Santa Clauses.

Overly chummy ministers who like to be regarded as "just one of the boys."

Men who brag about how they keep their beards in shape by sleeping with them in hairnets.

The new arithmetic.

Lectures on sex by so-called authorities who seem to be determined to turn everybody else's boudoir into a public clinic.

Any humorous birthday greeting cards sent to a woman over 30 or a man over 40.

People who think they can brighten your life during the morning coffee break at the office by telling you in detail the plot of an old movie they saw the night before on the boob tube.

The high cost of either high or low living.

From these and other nuisances, dear Lord, deliver us, Amen.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

WALKING with a Senator friend in Washington one morning, President Cal Coolidge was taken aback for a moment when the Senator pointed to the White House and impishly queried, "I wonder who lives there these days?" Cal recovered quickly, and answered, "Nobody, as a matter of fact. They only come and go!"

Douglas Fairbanks Jr., who delights in telling stories about his charming and erudite friend David Niven, insists that in his youth, Niven was assigned to a remote army post in India. Female talent was scarce, and the one really beautiful girl on the post, alas, was the wife of the colonel.

One morning at mess, the colonel suddenly asked, "Niven, are you in love with my wife?" Niven had the grace to blush a violent red, and stammer, "Certainly not, sir." "Then, demme," barked the colonel, "stop telling her you are. It makes her nervous."

According to Lexicographer Stuart Flexner, there are approximately 450,000 usable words in the English language today—and of these, 200,000 at least would be totally incomprehensible to William Shakespeare, should he suddenly materialize in either London or New York. That's how much the English language has changed in four centuries. Furthermore, asserts Flexner, a full third of this turnover has occurred within the last fifty years alone!

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

We live in a university town and have had one sad experience with tear gas. Isn't tear gas harmful? Can it do permanent damage?

Mr. T.D.J., California

Dear Mr. J.: Many people, uninvolved in group riots, have paid a penalty by being exposed to tear gas.

This irritating gas causes excessive tearing of the eyes, impairing vision temporarily. The entire lining of the lungs becomes inflamed causing coughing and difficulty in breathing.

If exposure to tear gas occurs indoors, it may produce permanent damage to the lungs.

As soon as possible after exposure, the eyes should be washed out with clear water. Rinsing the mouth will remove the chemical.

For the burning or irritation of the skin, do not use any oils, creams or ointments, because these tend to seal in the irritating chemical.

Examination by a doctor, particularly an eye specialist, is important in order to make sure that there has been no injury to the delicate membrane of the eyes.

Prevention is, of course, the ideal way to avoid the hazards of tear gas.

Stay away from "the scene."

Since bacteria are known to cause tooth decay, it is possible that a vaccine against this would be helpful?

Miss G.K., Indiana

Dear Miss K.: I am always delighted and intrigued with the interest that young people show in science and medicine.

I know from the rest of your letter that you are writing a high school paper on this subject. Ideas such as yours are not far-fetched, and indeed may stimulate research workers to follow your valuable idea.

Actually, some research workers are already working with experimental animals in the hope that a vaccine can be produced against dental caries, or decay.

Do air filters and air conditioners help to prevent asthmatic attacks in the young child? Since they are expensive, I do not want to buy one if it will not help.

TODAY In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Friday, Nov. 6, the 310th day of 1970. There are 55 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1969, Abraham Lincoln was elected president.

On this date:

In 1869, the first formal intercollegiate football game was played between Princeton and Rutgers at New Brunswick, N.J.

In 1917, woman suffrage was adopted in New York State.

In 1962, Benito Mussolini prohibited all opposition parties in Italy.

In 1928, Herbert Hoover defeated Alfred E. Smith in a hard-fought presidential election.

In 1956, President Dwight D. Eisenhower was reelected in a landslide victory over Adlai Stevenson.

In 1957, the U.N. General Assembly approved a Western resolution calling for new five-nation disarmament talks.

Ten years ago — Diplomatic reports from the Middle East said Israel and Egypt were renewing their arms race.

Five years ago — President Lyndon B. Johnson announced an agreement with the Castro government providing for 3,000 to 4,000 Cubans to be flown to the United States each month.

One year ago — Thousands of striking workers clashed with police in Milan, Italy's largest industrial city.

Fight Over Defense

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

We didn't hear much during the autumn political campaigning about the military-industrial complex: Nobody seemed to want to make it an issue. The left, which had been talking about "reordering our priorities" in hopes of giving less to the Pentagon and more to the central cities, apparently did not wish to be pushed into a pacifist corner at a time when the Soviets were proving intractable in the Middle East and threatening to go through with that nuclear submarine base in Cuba. And the Nixon Administration, satisfied with the issue of domestic law and order, saw no reason to disturb the one-dimensional impact of its rhetoric by bringing up visions of huge expenditures for armaments.

Now that the elections are over, however, the issue of national defense will surely become the Number One preoccupation of the White House. For the fact is that, despite the speeches of New York Mayor John Lindsay and others of the extreme urban welfarist lobby, we began to starve the military-industrial complex a long time ago in favor of giving first-order priority to the social budget.

With national defense expenditures jumping from $47 billion in 1952 to $73 billion for fiscal 1971, does this seem an idiotic statement? Economist John Kenneth Galbraith and Americans for Democratic Action national chairman Joe Duffey might say so. But Stanford University's Roger Freeman, whose brilliant brain has been missed in the White House ever since his decision to return to academic life, points out that, while defense costs doubled in 20 years, they barely kept ahead of the rise in prices. Meanwhile, our federal budget for education, health and welfare has jumped from $5 billion in 1952 to $73 billion for 1971. Where the military budget has risen by 57 per cent, the welfarist budget has soared by 1,142 per cent. Our other domestic services have gone up by 219 per cent.

The military, which took 13 per cent of the Gross National Product in 1952, now soaks up seven per cent. Federal spending for health, education and welfare has achieved parity with it. When the separate spending of the states and local communities for domestic services is included, it is obvious, as Roger Freeman says, that "the shift in national priorities which some political and academic groups have been demanding for years 'from the warfare state to the welfare state' has taken place." In short, Mayor Lindsay, Ken Galbraith and Joe Duffey have already won.

Just what this will get us is dependent on the good nature of the Communists. But we had better not count on miracles. As Mr. Freeman says, every time we go in for unilateral disarmament, the Soviets reply by triggering aggressive action at some point on the globe.

We cut our defense outlays from $80 billion in 1945 to $12 billion (in rotting dollars) in 1948. The result was Korea, which forced our military budget to $50 billion.

We now spend a lot on operations in Vietnam, which depletes the rest of the defense establishment. This, says Mr. Freeman, "leaves us with Swiss cheese defenses." And, as the holes in the Swiss cheese have been growing bigger, the propaganda of the left has zeroed in on the solid remainder of the cheese. If we listen to the critics of the military-industrial complex in our next Congress, we will only be including the next Korea, the next Vietnam or the next Cuban missile confrontation.

Unless something comes of the SALT disarmament negotiations with the Soviets, we will indeed have to "reorder our priorities." They will have to be reordered away from the present ascending arc for welfarism to such things as the MBT-70 battle tank, the AMSA (advanced manned strategic aircraft), and more nuclear submarines, to say nothing of the ABM (anti-ballistic missile) and the C-5A cargo plane. There was no argument during the fall election campaign about priorities, but the White House is preparing for the argument now.

Incidentally, it had better ask Roger Freeman to return from Stanford to Washington for industrial complex in our next another stint. Pat Moynihan won't be enough.

PREPARING FOR HIS DEFENSE—A crowd of newsmen is on hand in Saigon, South Vietnam, as U.S. Army Lt. William Calley (center) and his attorney, Maj. Kenneth Raby, arrive to begin a week's preparation for Calley's defense. Calley is charged with 102 murders in the alleged 1968 My Lai massacre. (Radiophoto)

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — With the elections behind it, the Republican administration must now focus even more intensively on the job of stabilizing the economy during the next year or else see law and order compromised as an issue in 1972.

Law and order, at least as a campaign tactic, was the byword of the administration for many months. The Democrats placed as much importance on the economic issues of inflation and unemployment.

It became obvious, however, that these issues were not so disparate as had seemed and that, in fact, they were in some respects different facets of the same situation. On election day they seemed headed for a merger.

Both issues were addressed to the same working class residents of urban communities. And as inflation and unemployment continued, they enveloped many of the most serious advocates of law and order.

There appeared to be some incongruity, for example, in the dedication of hardhats and their companions to the law-order issue when their paychecks were being eroded by inflation and their jobs threatened by layoffs.

The elections tended to reflect a growing awareness of this, judged by Democratic gains in some industrial states. But the congressional situation appeared less changed, a bit to the conservative side.

Efforts to correct the imbalance that produces inflation and layoffs have been under way since the Nixon administration took office, but there seems little doubt now that the effort will be maximized.

Perhaps, some economists suggest, more direct efforts must be made by the administration to educate the public regarding the limits of acceptable wage and price increases, a policy now practiced in Canada.

They maintain that modern economies may not be as susceptible to containment by traditional methods of fiscal and monetary policy, and that an added measure of persuasion or even threat must be introduced.

For this reason: Modern governments throughout the industrial world are committed to so-called full employment policies, or efforts to goad their economies to maximum output.

This means a continued flirtation with inflation, because history demonstrates that such policies eventually tend to produce the prospect of rising wages and prices.

If a full employment policy is to be maintained, it is argued, workers and employers must be made aware of the dangers to all in any inordinate wage or price demands.

It may be expected that the Nixon administration soon will have some words on the subject. To date, however, it has relied almost solely on the traditional cures of monetary and fiscal restraint.

These traditional methods are, somewhat belatedly, having their effect, and some financial men feel that economic pressures have been sufficiently relieved for the Federal Reserve to reduce its lending rate any day now.

But are the traditional methods swift enough to reset the stage for 1972? The best indication comes from the past, and in the past the traditional methods produced results many months behind schedule.

Pickaway Grange Report

NEBRASKA GRANGE

The November meeting of Nebraska Grange was held Tuesday evening when Worthy Lecturer, Joseph C. Peters, presented the program in keeping with Veterans Day, Thanksgiving and Harvest Time.

Those present joined in singing "God Bless America." Mrs. Walter Hendershot gave a reading in keeping with the season and Mrs. Joseph Peters presented a Poem "When John Put Up the Stove." The Lecturer related the story of the Pilgrims in 1621 and listed what we Americans have to give thanks for in 1970. All joined in singing the hymn "Battle Hymn of Republic." Ron Hendershot, Pickaway County Prince and member of Nebraska Grange reported on his trip to the annual session of the Ohio State Grange in Akron, October 25-28.

During the business portion of the meeting conducted by Worthy Master, Ray Noecker, Brother Edward Crites, local Youth Chairman, reported on the county youth meeting and announced a reception and open house from 2 to 4, November 15th, at the Grange Building for Betty Jo Bolender, who was crowned State Princess at the Youth Pageant held in conjunction with the Ohio State Grange Meeting.

The Grange voted to hold one meeting a month on the first Tuesday, beginning with the November meeting, on trial basis for the next six months. The next meeting will be held on December 1 and at this time the Christmas program will be presented by Lecturer, Joseph Peters. A 50 cent gift exchange will be held. The December committee in charge will be Mr. and Mrs. David Dill, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sark, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sark and Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Hoffhines.

A contribution was made for the Christmas gift shop at Veterans Hospital, Chillicothe. Mrs. Jessie Buskirk was reported a patient in Grant Hospital.

Refreshments were served by the November committee at gaily decorated tables for the season in the dining room.

STAR GRANGE

Star Grange met in regular session Tuesday evening in the Monroe School with Robert E. Morgan, master pro tem.

The regular business meeting was conducted with seventeen members present. It was announced that Star Grange will serve dinner at Pomona Grange Nov. 7 at the 4-H and Grange Building. The home economics chairman, Mrs. Wilbur Beathard reported on the Bloodmobile Canteen we had served at Circleville that day and thanked all for their generous donations and help. A contribution was made to the Pickaway County Grange Youth group who installed the officers of the Grange.

At the close of the business session Laura Long, lecturer presented the program entitled, "Once a Year on Halloween." It opened with the thought for the day by the chaplain Florence Long "Once a Year."

Robert Morgan read, "Night of Enchantment" and Jimmy Beathard read, "Then You Know." "On Halloween Eve" was read by Mrs. Allen Follrod and the Halloween Barn Dance was read by Mrs. Otha Lewis.

A contest, Halloween, to see how many words can be made out of the word was conducted with all present taking part. Mrs. Helen Hammel received the prize for the most words. At the close of the meeting seasonal refreshments of doughnuts and hot chocolate and coffee was served by Mr. and Mrs. William Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Moore.

ABOARD USS SHANGRI-LA (AP) — So many American planes are bombing the Ho Chi Minh trail in southern Laos that military officials have established traffic patterns similar to those in use at major American airports.

They have set fixed altitudes at which the Air Force fighter-bombers based in Thailand and South Vietnam and the Navy aircraft from carriers in the Gulf of Tonkin fly to and from the target area.

With the dry season beginning and the North Vietnamese pushing men and supplies southward into Cambodia and South Vietnam, the Laotian panhandle has become the focal point of the war in Indochina—and air activity there has escalated as well.

"The biggest danger along the trail these days isn't being shot down—it's running into somebody else," said a pilot aboard the Shangri-La, one of two carriers operating on "Yankee Station" off North Vietnam.

Officials have not reported any collisions of American aircraft over the Laotian panhandle, but pilots say they know or have heard of near-misses.

heavy. One reason, Navy pilots believe, is that the North Vietnamese cannot move most modern, radar-controlled anti-aircraft equipment down the muddy trails into Laos. Another is that the bombing itself has restricted the movement of supplies.

Air Force and Navy average up to 400 missions a day over the Ho Chi Minh trail and newly established, alternate infiltration routes in southern Laos. Bombing has been curtailed by bad weather in the last two weeks. In any event, the aerial traffic jam over the panhandle is soon to be eased as the Shangri-La departs with three squadrons of Skyhawk attack bombers. The carrier, 26 years old and showing her age, will return to her home port at Jacksonville, Fla., and then go to Boston for decommissioning.

She follows into retirement another World War II carrier, Bon Homme Richard, recently withdrawn from the U.S. 7th Fleet's carrier force. Only one will be replaced, leaving three rather than four carriers in the 7th Fleet that supports the Indochina war.

Set Flood Plain Data Release Next Thursday

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A report on flood plain information for the Tuscarawas River in Stark County is to be released next Thursday.

It will be issued by Fred E. Morr, Ohio Department of Natural Resources director, and Col. Maurice D. Roush, district engineer for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers at Huntington, W. Va.

The purpose of the study is to provide local governments with a better understanding of the flood hazard areas along the river from south of the Village of Navarre upstream to the Stark-Summit County line.

Morr said future development along the state's streams such as the Tuscarawas must be a product of cooperative planning and effort to minimize the impact of future floods on property. Copies of the report are to be made available through the Stark County Regional Planning Commission.

Suit Challenges Ohio Riot Law, Used At KSU

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of the state's anti-riot law and "raising issues of academic freedom" is to be representing a Kent State University professor indicted by a special state grand jury.

The indictment was one of 25 returned by the jury convened to investigate violence at Kent May 1-4 that ended with the death of four students and the wounding of nine others in a confrontation with the Ohio National Guard.

The Cleveland attorney, Gerald Messerman, said the action would be filed on behalf of 29 other KSU faculty members. He appeared Thursday in the courtroom of U.S. District Court Judge William K. Thomas for a hearing on action brought by the Kent Legal Defense Coordinating Center, which seeks to quash the indictments.

Messerman, who represents Dr. Thomas G. Lough of Kent State, said he was willing to have his action joined with that of the Defense Center.

Benjamin Sheerer, heading a team of three attorneys presenting the Defense Center's case, asked for a three-judge panel to hear the question of the constitutionality of the states' anti-riot laws under which the indictments were returned.

Defense Center attorneys also are asking federal court to take jurisdiction under a section of the Civil Rights Act which refers to denial of a person's rights through action taken "under color of state law."

Judge Thomas said he would rule early next week on whether he would ask for a three-judge panel to hear the cases. He first must determine if the constitutional question raised is substantial enough to warrant the convening of the panel.

The law suffers "the vices of vagueness and overbreadth prohibited by the First Amendment," Sheerer said, adding that the constitutional question must be resolved before the Riot Act can be used.

A motion to dismiss the action was filed by Robert D. Macklin of the Ohio Attorney General's office. He argued that it was not proper in this instance to pit the powers of the federal government against those of the state.

"I'm concerned about setting one jurisdiction against another," Macklin said. "The First Amendment does not protect riot or incitement to riot."

Macklin represents state officials and grand jurors named defendants in the Defense Center action.

In court were the plaintiffs, Kenneth J. Hammond, 22, of Akron, and Douglas C. Cormack, 20, Willoughby. Both were indicted by the grand jury on riot charges.

Ten attorneys involved in the Defense Center have filed suit on behalf of 20 Kent State students, faculty and others.

The action asks that the jury report be declared null and void. The suit said that students were described as a "riotous mob" at the time of the violence. The statement included students who were not indicted.

New Law Chief Eyes Crime, Drugs

By DEAN SCHOTT

Associated Press Writer

LISBON, Ohio (AP)—Crime, drugs and consumer fraud will be the major issues confronting the new Ohio attorney general, says Democrat William J. Brown, who assumes the post in January.

"Crime and drugs run a parallel line as the biggest issues facing the attorney general," says Brown, who at 30 is the youngest person ever to hold an elected statewide position.

"Crime and drugs are rampant," he said, and "people are looking for answers."

The Lisbon attorney said he plans to "revamp" the consumer frauds and crimes section of the attorney general's office to stop "people from duping the public."

He said he will develop a "hard-hitting investigating unit" that will attack "all crime and all drugs."

Brown, a political newcomer who defeated Republican State Treasurer John D. Herbert, said his office is limited to investigating crimes and cannot prosecute without a prior request from the governor.

He said he will develop the idea of giving the attorney general's office more power to prosecute because "We have enough government costs. I'm going to try to streamline the office, but increase the burdens."

The attorney general-elect declined to elaborate on his "many faceted attack" on crime and drugs, saying, "I hate to tell the criminal what I am going to do."

But Brown said, "We are going to work extremely close with county prosecutors, sheriffs and police chiefs" to combat crime. He added, "We have to work together to be effective."

Brown says he plans to revitalize the consumer frauds and crimes section of his office so Ohioans "can spend their dollars better."

"I would like to get into everything that the consumer will spend a dollar on," he said. Brown particularly mentioned cleaning products, food, guarantees, used cars and loan companies.

"In four years as attorney general," he said, "I hope to touch on everything."

His main task between now and January is to pick a staff, which he said is "crucial."

Brown, who campaigned on bringing "you-hul professional-ism" to the attorney general's office said he is more interested in energy than age in filling the more than 100 full time staff positions.

He said he is considering several persons as his chief deputy and will make an announcement later.

Brown defeated John McDonald, House minority leader in the primary. In Tuesday's election, he outran Herbert, who had been embroiled in the state loan scandal.

"I don't know how much the scandal affected the campaign," Brown said. "I can't tell you why I won the election. I know I just got more votes, and that is what counts."

A graduate of Duquesne University and Ohio University College of Law, he worked as a U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity attorney in Youngstown for nearly a year.

He said it gave him "a tremendous amount of legal experience. I was in court nearly everyday on everything, both criminal and civil."

He is a native of Youngstown, a bachelor and a member of the Lisbon law firm of Riddle, Riddle and Brown.

Before taking office he said he plans a vacation and to take care of his private legal work.

During his vacation, he said, "I am going to the beach and run 10 miles a day. I really got out of shape during the campaign. I didn't gain any weight, but I sure did get flabby."

Scott May Face Challenge To Leadership In Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Tuesday's elections providing a slightly more conservative tinge to Senate Republican ranks, Sen. Hugh Scott may face a new challenge to his party leadership.

Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee, defeated by Scott for the GOP leader's post by a 24-19 vote after the death of Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois last year, said in an interview he may make another run for the job.

"I wouldn't rule out the possibility," Baker said, adding he may make a decision after a couple more days of analyzing election returns.

There will be at least five new Republicans in the Senate and possibly a sixth, depending on the outcome of the still undecided Indiana race between conservative Rep. Richard Roudebush and liberal Democratic Sen. Vance Hartke.

In addition, Conservative party candidate James L. Buckley unseated liberal Republican Sen. Charles E. Goodell in New York and likely would back Baker against Scott. Goodell voted for Scott.

Baker, who noted a switch of only three votes would have given him the edge over Scott in last year's party caucus, said he might have a chance to win the votes of most of the new Republican senators.

All the new Republican senators are stepping up from the House—Lowell P. Weicker of Connecticut, William V. Roth of Delaware, J. Glenn Beall of Maryland, Robert Taft Jr. of Ohio and William E. Brock III of Tennessee.

Baker said only two senators who supported him for party leader in the secret balloting were defeated—George Murphy of California and Ralph T. Smith of Illinois.

Like his father-in-law Dirksen, Baker is more conservative than Scott, but contends issues are less a factor in the leadership than rapport with party colleagues.

Scott, who won a third Senate term Tuesday, recently was described by one supporter as a shoo-in for re-election as party leader when the 92nd Congress convenes in January.

But it is no secret that a number of his GOP colleagues, especially the conservatives, have not been happy with Scott's leadership.

In addition to himself, Baker listed as possible challengers for the leadership post Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, the assistant leader; Gordon Allott of Colorado, chairman of the Senate GOP policy committee, and Robert J. Dole of Kansas, a vigorous defender of the Nixon administration.

Animals Analyzed For Hunting Season

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Agriculture Director John M. Steckhouse said Thursday that in anticipation of the fall hunting season his department has been analyzing game animals for presence of mercury residues in their flesh.

He said "we are happy to report that samples tested were extremely low and should present no health hazard when consumed." Of the 180 samples of the various species of game tested, 76 showed no evidence of mercury residues, he said.

Prison Guard Faces Charges

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An Ohio Penitentiary guard has been charged with obtaining money under false pretenses allegedly involving overtime pay for hours he did not work.

Samuel Everhart, 42, was arrested by the Ohio Highway Patrol which along with Warden Harold J. Cardwell began an investigation to determine if other prison staff personnel were involved in a payroll padding scheme. The warden said the Ohio Department of Mental Hygiene and Corrections also is taking part in the investigation.

Everhart was charged with collecting pay for 273 hours he did not work, the warden said. He had been employed at the prison as a corrections officer since last December.

The warden said he uncovered the over-payments to Everhart after receiving a tip. He declined to say how pay records were falsified, explaining "that's a part of the evidence." Some records are handled by honor inmates under supervision of staff personnel.

The Adult Reading World

In keeping with the library's policy of updating its reference collection, several new reference tools have been added recently. They are shelved in the reference room and are available to the public.

Some titles are: "The Harvard Dictionary of Music," "The Oxford Dictionary of Christian Theology," "The New York Times Encyclopedia of America 1970," an almanac type volume including many different kinds of facts about our country; "The Three-volume Encyclopedia of World Literature in the Twentieth Century;" "Modern American Literature;" criticism; "The Oxford Companion to English Literature;" and "The Oxford Companion to American Literature."

For business people, there are "Real Estate Investment Planning" and "Mutual Funds Investment Planning." With each of the last two are filed the news letters which keep them up-to-date. The Thomas Register is also on the shelf.

Two other volumes, containing useful information, have been placed on reference. They are: "Crowell's Handbook of World Opera," and "Crowell's Gilbert and Sullivan Handbook."

Patrons may enjoy looking at these and other new reference books, familiarizing themselves with the special features of each.

Parents are asked to remind their elementary age boys and girls to submit their entries for a name for the children's department.

Besides the book already offered as a prize, E. R. Bennett, Realtor, will give the winner a check for $25. Details are available from the library, schools and the bookmobile. Contest closes Nov. 15, the first day of National Children's Book Week.

Having the family at your home for Thanksgiving? Leaf through the November issues of our women's magazines for fresh decorating and food ideas.

He makes a marvelous picture — but would he really make a marvelous chef? Can you imagine what might happen if you let him brew up a pot of everything his chubby little fingers could latch onto?

Let's face it! It takes thought, direction and planning to do anything well in life — even to make a good stew. Though a true chef may not follow the cookbook precisely, he will select and blend his ingredients with care and precision. Only then will the dish be a success.

What does all this have to do with going to church? More than you might think! If you have been leaving the Church out of your recipe for living, you have been missing some of life's most priceless ingredients — God's love, His priceless gift of Faith and some of the greatest lessons ever revealed to man.

Paris Reds Insulting To Nixon

PARIS (AP) —North Vietnamese Ambassador Xuan Thuy used the Paris peace talks Thursday as a forum to say that President Nixon "has lied to the American people."

U.S. Ambassador David K.E. Bruce, taking this as an inadmissible insult to the President, delivered an immediate rebuke to the North Vietnamese envoy.

Telling newsmen what no other delegation spokesman would reveal, Nguyen Thanh Le, Hanoi spokesman, said Thuy told Bruce: "What I must say and what I will say is that Mr. Nixon has lied to the American people."

"The reactionary policy he practices is tied to the prolongation of the war in Vietnam and in Indochina."

U.S. spokesman Steven Leogar would not reveal what had annoyed Bruce but recounted that "in a sharp exchange at the end of the meeting personally insulting remarks by Ambassador Xuan Thuy were made about the President of the United States of America."

Expect Vote Total To Hit Record For Off-Year Tally

Synagogue In Rochester Hit By Blast

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A dynamite explosion early today blew two holes in the rear of Temple Beth Am in suburban Henrietta. No injuries were reported.

It was the third synagogue bombing in the area within 10 days. Two were damaged in Rochester Oct. 27 in explosions. Six other buildings in the city were bombed Oct. 12.

"Considerably more than two sticks of dynamite were used here," Sheriff's Detective Donald Wall said of Temple Beth Am.

Police said devices they described as "fuse bombs" had been placed in the corner of a one-story cinder-block structure forming the rear of the synagogue and housing offices and a kitchen.

Police said they were looking for a red Oldsmobile station wagon which was reported near the temple shortly after the explosion at 1 a.m. A sheriff's deputy said he saw the car speeding north toward Rochester as he drove south to the synagogue.

The Good Shepherd Roman Catholic church, across the street from the synagogue, was undamaged. Windows were broken in nearby homes.

Dr. Joseph S. Noble, rabbi of the synagogue, said no notes of warning or explanation were found.

Radio, TV Licenses Given FCC Approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — Renewal of the licenses of WJW radio and WJW-TV in Cleveland was affirmed Thursday by the Federal Communications Commission.

The FCC dismissed a complaint by Richard B. Kay, American Independent Party candidate for the U.S. Senate from Ohio, who contended the stations gave "unreasonable preference and advantage" to the Democratic and Republican parties.

The commission, after reviewing earlier approval of the renewals by the chief of the FCC broadcast bureau, said it could find no support for Kay's allegations.

Americans went to the polls Tuesday than in any off-year election, but—as usual—not anywhere near that of a presidential year.

With scattered precincts yet to be counted and thousands of absentee ballots to be tabulated an Associated Press survey show an unofficial total of 56,146,618 tallied so far.

That's near the final 56,827,994 total of 1966 and well over the 53,510,425 in 1962. The 1960 presidential vote was 68,883,341 and the 1968 total was 73,359,968.

The voting-age population has grown from 106 million in 1960 to an estimated 124 million this year and the turnout pattern has remained about the same.

Republican National Committee researchers had figured 49 per cent of the 124 million would vote this year, the same percentage as in 1966 and 1962. That would be 60 million votes.

The presidential vote turnout was 63.2 per cent in 1960, 62 per cent in 1964 and 61.1 in 1968.

Getting an accurate voter turnout picture is more complicated in off-year elections than in a presidential year. It can be done only by taking the vote for all candidates in a statewide race such as governor or U.S. senator or adding the totals for all U.S. House seats in the state.

But while most voters cast their ballot for president many may skip balloting for senator, governor or congressmen in off-year elections. So they're lost in the calculation.

The 1966 vote already has been surpassed in most of the states where there were key battles for Senate seats, notably Florida, Texas, Tennessee, Ohio and Michigan. In Tennessee, where there were hot Senate and gubernatorial races, the 1,101,476 counted for governor was a record turnout for a non-presidential year.

But in some states with big election battles—California,

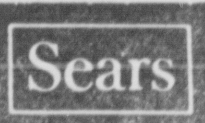

New York and Illinois—the 1966 totals have not been reached, but they had big contests that year too.

The final count has been slow in a few states, notably Louisiana, with only about two-thirds of the vote tabulated. There was no gubernatorial or senatorial race in Louisiana.

Duster vs. Vega.

The big difference is not the $57.65.*

How we got the $57.65*

	Duster	Vega

Wheel Ornamentation	$ 26.75 (Covers)	$ 26.50 (Trim Rings)
TOTAL	$2371.70*	$2314.05*
Difference	$ 57.65*

Now that you know how we got the $57.65* we'll tell you what you get for it.

Duster.

The big difference in small cars.

We introduced Duster as the best transportation bargain in America. And it still is.

Furthermore, we designed the Duster to be America's "small-enough-but-big-enough" car. And it still is.

Small enough for maneuverability in city traffic. And big enough for stability on the open highway.

Small enough to give you great gas mileage. Big enough to give you a little more power than other small cars' smaller engines. So before you buy a Vega, before you buy any small car, look at our small car.

It's the big difference in small cars.

Room. For more people. More stuff.

Duster gives you eight more inches hip room in the front seat and 14 more inches in the back seat. And about two-and-a-half more inches shoulder room in front and six more inches in back. Duster's a five passenger car with a trunk that holds 15.9 cubic feet of things. Vega is a four passenger car with 9.3 cubic feet of room for hauling things. That means Duster can handle one more passenger and a lot more stuff than Vega.

Torsion bars.

Here's why we make a big deal of having them.

Duster has a torsion-bar suspension setup in front. Whereas Vega uses coil springs.

A coil spring works by bouncing up and down. But a torsion bar works by twisting and returning to its original shape. The way a piece of rubber hose reacts when you twist it.

Duster has 14 inch wheels. Vega's wheels are 13 inches. And Duster has an 11 inch advantage in wheelbase.

We believe all this adds up to better handling and stability for Duster.

Options.

Over twice as many.

There's a healthy list of conveniences and extras that Duster offers and Vega doesn't.

It includes power brakes, V-8 engines, a vinyl roof, etc.

A small economical car shouldn't have to go without some of the finer things in life unless you want it that way.

Little things.

When you add them all up, they aren't so little.

Duster gives you 664 lbs. more weight, instrument panel gauges (Vega uses lights), a counter-balanced hood (Vega has prop rod support) and a cast iron engine (Vega's is aluminum).

Vega, surprisingly, has no glove box; Duster does. Vega's rear quarter windows are fixed; Duster's open to bring in fresh air.

Chrysler-Plymouth coming through.

We're coming through with variety. We have more kinds of new cars than anyone else in the business.

We're coming through with brand-new options. This year, we're offering 11 options you can't get on other kinds of cars. They're exclusive.

We're coming through with value. We make sure you get a dollar's worth of car for every dollar you spend. Our cars are built and engineered with extra care.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Nosey Neighbor Has Noisy Mind

DEAR ABBY: I have a neighbor, a very beautiful woman who is a college graduate, very refined and has the reputation of being a perfect lady. I know for a fact that she is a downright cheat.

One night last week I couldn't sleep, so I sat at the window, and at midnight I saw this woman come home. Fifteen minutes later she admitted a strange man into her home through the garage. He stayed exactly one hour and 50 minutes. I know for certain that her husband was out of town that night.

I told my husband about it, and said I thought her husband should be told the kind of woman he is married to. My husband said I should mind my own business. I'd like your opinion.

A NEIGHBOR

DEAR NEIGHBOR: I think you wasted a six-cent stamp. Your husband's advice was A. O. K.

DEAR ABBY: My son is getting married and the brides people are having a reception for 150 guests, out of which they are allowing us to invite only 40! I felt this was unfair, but I accepted it.

On our side is a nine-year-old nephew, and when the bride's mother heard he was invited, she called me up and said no children at the reception, so I had to cancel out my nephew. Now I hear the bride's side is having two children in the wedding party and I am sure they will attend the reception. My son says no, but I am betting they will be there.

Abby, if after we get to the reception, we see one child there my whole family plans to walk out. Do you think we would be wrong to do this?

MAD

DEAR MAD: Yes. Put your own feelings aside for this one day. If you were to walk out for any reason, it would spoil your son's wedding day. (You will find something else to be mad at his in-laws for later. From the way you describe them, you'll have many opportunities.)

DEAR ABBY: That woman who got jealous because she saw her husband with his arms around his secretary must be a real dope. He said he was showing his appreciation to a good secretary, and I believe him.

That woman should know what it is to see real trouble, like paralysis, cancer, arthritis. I see it every day as I am a therapist, and I'm thrilled to pieces when one of the doctors meets me in the corridor, puts his arm around me and gives me a little hug and says, "Gee, girl, you're wonderful—we got him walking again, didn't we."

If that doctor were to pass me in the hall with only a cold, "Good morning," everyone in the hospital would be sure we were sleeping together.

VERY truly yours,

APPRECIATED

"HUGGED IN HOLLAND": Speak for yourself. Maybe you'd rather have your boss put his arms around you to show his appreciation for your services. But you're out-numbered 50 to one. The others prefer a "raise."

Teacher Corps Emphasis Shifted To Reform Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Teacher Corps Director Richard A. Graham has a problem.

The energetic, bushy-haired former engineer-inventor-businessman runs a federal program launched five years ago to fill a vast teacher shortage.

But since then colleges have turned out large numbers of teachers and the shortage no longer exists.

Graham must now promote and justify the Teacher Corps as an engine for educational reform.

"The purpose of a Teacher Corps project," said the Republican veteran of the Kennedy-Johnson days, "is to try out and adopt—to accelerate the adoption of educational reforms which have shown promise elsewhere."

The corps traditionally recruits young people—most of them college graduates without previous teacher training—for two year intern assignments in poverty-area schools.

There are 2,800 corpsmen serving in 140 school districts throughout 40 states.

The teacher-interns instruct classes, provide individual tutoring, organize parents, hold special after-school and weekend programs, and study for a bachelor's or master's degree in education at local universities. The pay is $75 a week.

The Teacher Corps started as one of President Johnson's most controversial Great Society programs.

Congressional promoters of the Teacher Corps once visualized the program training upwards of 35,000 teacher-interns each year on a $100 million budget. The corps' budget has only now reached $31 million.

Nevertheless, Graham believes the corps can bolster education for poor children by reforming teacher training.

Penn Central Parent Reports Net Loss

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Penn Central Co., parent company of the financially troubled Penn Central Transportation Co., has reported a net loss of $194.5 million for the first nine months of this year.

The parent holding company had shown a profit of $17.6 million for the same period last year. The report also showed a net loss for the third quarter of this year of $70.4 million compared with a net loss of $8.9 million for the third quarter in 1969.

Carol White Joins CHS Senior Class

By LINDA HUTCHINSON and DEBRA SCHNEIDER

CHS salutes Carol White a new student from Columbus South. She is 18 years old and resides with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed White at 112 Watt St. Carol has two sisters and two brothers.

CAROL WHITE

While attending Columbus South, Carol was active in the Booster Club and Tri-Hi-Y. When asked her opinion of CHS and the students she replied, "It takes getting used to a small school, but very nice and a lot more restricted and quiet. Some of the kids here are very friendly."

Class To Present Drama On Youth

By TRICIA PASSMORE

At eight p.m., Nov. 20, the houselights dim, a hush falls upon the audience and the curtain rises. It is opening night for the Junior Class play, "David and Lisa" will be performed by an excellent cast which has been directed by Mr. William Dunkle. The play is a stirring drama of teenagers, both of whom are placed in an institution. Each has a problem, but in time they conquer their problems through the help of each other.

The cast and stage crews have worked tirelessly to make this production a success.

"The play, "David and Lisa" will be performed on the nights of Nov. 20 and 21 at the CHS auditorium. Be sure and be there!

SOPHOMORE SIT-IN — An experiment in poetry study was a high point in Mrs. Helen Wach's sophomore English classes this week. Entering the classroom, they were instructed to have a seat on the floor in order to achieve the correct atmosphere in which poetry should be taught. Mrs. Wach was given the idea during one of the discussion group sessions she attended recently at the Central Ohio Teachers Assn. The idea is that poetry is not a formal, rigid pattern of literature but a very flexible one. The CHS teacher lauds the method as effective and pleasant.

Circleville Grad Takes Over CHS Music Department

GARY DEAN
New Music Director

By ARLENE WALTERS

Gary Dean, the new and vigorous band and choir director, hails from Circleville. The 1960 CHS graduate resides at 1003 Lynwood Ave. with his wife Mary Jane and two-year-old son, Stephen.

Mr. Dean received his bachelor degree from the University of Cincinnati — Conservatory of Music and his masters from Morehead State University. Before returning to his hometown, Dean taught at Morgan and Fleming County, Ky. schools.

Besides his many school activities, Dean has memberships with the Ohio Music Education Association, Ohio Education Association and Phi Alpha Fraternity.

Home Ec Gals Study Cooking By Microwave

By LINDA STRUCKMAN

Have you dropped by the home economics department lately?

Mrs. Rickey invited a panel, made up of Mrs. Donna Billups, Mrs. Pat Wellman, Miss Linda Steek and Mrs. Louise Heine, to speak on shopping habits and answer any questions the students of Home Economics II had at the conclusion of their unit on Food Buying.

Students are also learning of the speed and convenience of microwave cookery. All classes have studied about the electronic range demonstrated and loaned by Miss Carol Kotowich, Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company Home Economist. She and Mrs. Betty Keating, the district Betty Newton from the Ohio Fuel Gas Company, have demonstrated on the care and use of the department ranges.

Home Ec. I are now completing a unit on Clothing Construction. The maxi skirt is very popular with these girls this fall.

Utilizing the microwave oven, the Senior Home Ec. class prepared different varieties of food, finding there is more to this oven than just heating.

Education Night Planned

By CHIP MORGAN and DEAN SMALLWOOD

The Guidance Departments of the four high schools in Pickaway County are sponsoring a program next Wednesday evening, at 7:30 p.m.

This program is designed to permit area students and parents to make personal contact with post-high school educational institutions. Parents and students from grades nine through twelve are encouraged to take this opportunity to obtain information about the wide variety of schools to be represented.

Nearly fifty schools will have representatives at this evening program. Twenty-four colleges have accepted invitations to attend. They are: Ohio University, Ohio State University, Miami University, Kent State University, Capital University, Franklin University, Otterbein College, Bowling Green State University, University of Cincinnati, Ashland College.

Virginia Intermont College, Wilmington College, Morehead State University, Ohio University — Chillicothe, Ohio Dominican, Ohio University — Lancaster, Rio Grande College, Salem College, Marietta College, Columbus of Art and Design, Bluffton College, Circleville Bible College, Urbana College and Ohio Northern University.

In addition four Hospital Schools of Nursing and one School of Practical Nursing have accepted invitations to come. They are: Grant Hospital, Riverside Whitecross, Mt. Carmel School of Nursing, Holzer Hospital, Gallipolis and Columbus School of Practical Nursing.

Technical Institutes sending representatives are: Ohio Technical Institute, Columbus Technical Institute, Tri-County Term Institute, Clark County Technical Institute, United Electronics Institute and IIT Schools.

A number of other specialty schools will be represented. Included are Columbus Business University, Bliss College of Commerce, Ohio State School of Cosmetology, Nationwide College of Commerce, Nationwide Beauty Academy, Andrew-Columbus Barber College, Ohio State Barber College, Career Academy and New York Technical Institute.

DE Students Of The Week

By LINDA HUTCHISON and NORMA SHEPHERD

Wilma Stevens and Marjorie Wolfe are the DECA students of the week.

Wilma is 18 years old and resides with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Stevens, at 474 Half Ave. Wilma has two sisters and two brothers. She works at Vic's Pizza, and she enjoys her position.

When asked her opinion of DECA, she stated, "I like DECA very much. It's just great and worthwhile."

Marjorie is also 18 years old and she resides with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dolph Wolfe, at 217 Nicholas Drive. Marjorie has two sisters and one brother.

Marjorie's main interests are swimming, baseball, skating, tennis and volleyball. She works at Noel's King Boy and when asked what she thought of her work she replied, "I like my job very much." Her opinion of DECA, was "In the club there is a lot of hard work and a lot of fun." She is also active in the band and the girl's volleyball intramurals.

Students Seek Means To Peace

By JEANNE CUPP

I'm sure all of you have read or seen something about the mass peace demonstrations across the country. I attended the one held in Columbus at the Capitol Building to see just what went on.

Kent State, Oxford, OSU and many other colleges were represented plus Women's Lib and many working unions. They were all united in two causes: End the war and free the "Kent 25."

Means by which these problems were to be solved differed. Some advocated violent overthrow of the government but many more love this country as much as their forefathers but think there are many changes to be made.

The people who go to these rallies are very much concerned about this country. One speaker compared this country to a child. He said if you let it do what it wants and not try to guide it with your opinions you don't love it, you just simply don't care.

Whether these rallies will do any good, is hard to say. But it is essential to voice your opinions in a democracy. Because that is what it is all about.

Club Requirements Are Questioned For Restrictions

By ROD KASLER

Last Wednesday at the semi-weekly student council meeting, Mr. Sarche, principle of CHS, and Mr. Spring, chairman of the club-membership committee, spoke concerning the rules of our various school clubs. The main topics discussed were disposal of the two-point grade requirement and forming of new organizations.

Mr. Spring stated that certain students, who perhaps need club experience most, were not getting it because they don't have a "C" average or better. He explained that those students could benefit greatly if they were allowed to participate in more school activities. Although the individual organizations could still choose their own members, the grade factor would not enter the picture.

However, if more people were eligible for clubs there may be a need for more and enlarged organizations. Therefore, the suggestion was made that more clubs be organized involving different areas of interest. Thus, these new clubs would attract the talents of more participants.

The speaker ended his talk by saying that clubs were an important tribute to the school and student's. They give special experience, teach responsibility and do things for the school.

However, they are a property of the school, thus more students should be involved in these club groups.

Women Maintain Study Hall Order

study hall for eight periods a day.

Findiag out more about the students is what Mrs. Jean Tarbill enjoys most about her job. She resides at 106 Collins Court with her husband and two children, Melody, who attends the high school, and Mike, who goes to the junior high.

This is Mrs. Tarbill's second year as a monitor, and she finds it very interesting. She commented about the students, "Most of them behave well." Mrs. William Fischer is the other monitor. She lives with her husband and two girls, Kathy and Judy, at 542 Garden Parkway.

Mrs. Fischer is also in her second year of being a monitor and she says the work is enjoyable and makes the year pass quickly. Her opinion of the students was "They are better behaved than they were last year."

The monitors said that there is usually between 90 and 100 students in every study hall and they don't let you get bored.

Quick Remap By Special Meet Eyed

COLUMBUS, Ohio AP) — House Speaker Charles F. Kurfess said Thursday a special legislative session probably will be called next month to redraw congressional districts.

That would give Republicans a jump on the Democratic administration of Gov. elect John J. Gilligan although congressional boundaries are set by the legislature which will remain under Republican control.

Gov. James A. Rhodes could not be reached for comment on Kurfess' remarks.

Kurfess, Republican from Perrysburg, said a possible special session has been discussed "in the last two days."

"We would probably do everybody a favor by getting it out of the way now," Kurfess said.

He said a special session would probably be called next month. But he said "they will scream to high heaven" and added, "I have been through that before."

The only drawback to a special session, he said, would be the availability of final federal census figures which are needed to redraw the districts on the basis of population.

The secretary of state's office reports the new census figures are expected next month.

Ohio will lose one congressional seat in 1972 because the state did not keep its population position during the 1960s. That fact must be taken into consideration when the new boundaries are drawn.

Any redistricting proposal moves through the Ohio House and Senate like any other bill. After passage by both houses, it requires the signature of the governor.

A special session of the legislature would enable Republicans to redraw the boundaries in favor of their party while they still have a Republican, Gov. James A. Rhodes, as the chief executive.

Freight Rate Hike Slated On Railroads

WASHINGTON (AP) — Contending the nation's railroads are faced "with economic strangulation," the Interstate Commerce Commission Thursday paved the way for freight rate increases of 8 per cent in the East and West and 6 per cent in the South.

In addition, the ICC gave the railroads an additional one per cent increase in freight rates that was withheld in a rate decision last March.

The commission rejected the railroads' request for a rate hike of 15 per cent in the East and West. It said the 8 and 6 per cent increases could go into effect 15 days after the railroads make a formal request. Such a request is expected within days.

The ICC cautioned, however, that the larger increases would be subject to refund by the railroads if an investigation into the adequacy of railroad freight rates, begun Sept. 2, shows the hikes to be unnecessary.

But in a statement accompanying the commission's order, Chairman George M. Stafford seemed to preclude such a finding.

"In recent months it has become abundantly clear that many of the nation's railroads so vital to providing this country with a viable transportation network are in dire financial need," he said.

Recalling the financial collapse last summer of the nation's largest railroad, the Penn Central, Stafford said, "Reports indicate other roads are at the brink of a similar calamity."

Wisconsin Badgers Face Buckeyes At Their Best

By ARTHUR L. SRB
Associated Press Writer
MADISON, Wis. (AP)—For the first time in three years, Wisconsin's Badgers will get to compete against senior quarterback Rex Kern of Ohio State. And the prospect shouldn't be too pleasant for Badger fans. Kern, who has directed the third-ranked Buckeyes to a 6-0 record, was sidelined with injuries when Wisconsin and Ohio State clashed in 1968 and 1969.

Two years ago, Ron Maciejowski replaced Kern and directed the Buckeyes to a 43-8 victory at Wisconsin. At Ohio State last year, Maciejowski started again and guided the Buckeyes to a 62-7 rout.

Despite the classy quarterback's ability to move his team, Wisconsin Coach John Jardine said he was pleased that Kern appeared ready to start Saturday's game in Camp Randall Stadium.

"We're glad he's in good health," Jardine said of Kern. "We want to play Ohio State at its best."

Kern is one of the best all-around quarterbacks in the country," Jardine said. "He may not be as good a passer as (Archie) Manning or (Jim) Plunkett, but he does the whole job better than anyone."

Jardine labels Kern as "one of the most dangerous running quarterbacks around."

And it's the Buckeyes running game the "Badgers" fear most, the Wisconsin coach said.

"Stopping their rushing attack will be our biggest problem," admitted Jardine, who singled out Buckeye fullback John Brockington for special praise. Brockington has rushed for 744 yards in six games.

Wisconsin enters the game with a 2-4-1 record. The latest Badgers' loss was to fifth ranked Michigan Saturday by a 29-15 score. The Badgers were in the game until late in the game, trailing 22-15.

The Michigan game, Jardine said, took so much out of his Badgers mentally that there might be some difficulty getting them up for Ohio State.

Ruth, who already had hit a three-run homer off Root, came to bat in the fifth inning with the score tied 4-4. Root got two quick called strikes.

Then, according to the story, Ruth raised his hand and pointed towards centerfield. Another version has him pointing with his bat.

In either case, it was interpreted by the howling crowd as meaning that he was going to hit the next pitch over the fence—and that is exactly what he did.

The Yankees won the game 7-5 and went on to win the series in four straight.

Root contended that all Ruth did was hold up one finger to indicate he still had one strike left.

Cub Manager Charlie Grimm had still another version. He recalled that pitcher Gay Bush was heckling from the dugout when Ruth pointed at the mound and called, "You'll be out there tomorrow and we'll see what you can do."

MAC Track Meet Slated

ATHENS, Ohio (AP)—Defending champion Bowling Green and two schools with a flock of league titles, Miami and Western Michigan, will battle Saturday morning for the Mid-American Conference cross country championship.

The Falcons' only Mid-American title came last fall while Miami has won the crown 11 times and Western Michigan nine times. Bowling Green is the favorite, based on a 100 dual meet record and the All-Ohio and Notre Dame titles this fall.

Sid Sink, NCAA steeplechase king, shoots for an unprecedented third straight individual crown against a field that includes four other All-Americans in the nation's toughest cross country conference.

The other All-Americans are Bob Bertelsen of Ohio University, Dave Wottle of Bowling Green and Gary Harris and Jerome Liebenberg of Western Michigan. The race will be over six miles of the Elm Golf Course near here.

Urge Bar To Pros
In Tennis Tourney

NEW YORK (AP)—The U.S. Lawn Tennis Association has recommended that all contract professionals be barred from the USLTA-sanctioned prize-money tournaments in 1971, it was disclosed Thursday night.

The recommendation is in a letter from Alastair B. Martin, president of the USLTA, to members of the administrative committee which will meet in Cleveland Thursday to consider the proposal.

If the recommendation is adopted, said Bob Malaga, executive director of the USLTA, such contract pros as Rod Laver, Ken Rosewall and Arthur Ashe would be barred from competing in the U.S. Open Championships at Forest Hills.

Thomas Hopeful
Bengals Will Pass

CINCINNATI (AP)—Lewis "Speedy" Thomas, who was thrown no passes Monday night in the Bengals loss to the Pittsburgh Steelers last Thursday, hoped his National Football League Club planned to throw more in the remaining games.

The Bengals, now one and eight on the season, have only defeated the Oakland Raiders.

"What I don't understand," said the wide receiver, "is how we can play so well against the real good teams like Oakland and Cleveland, say, and not play so good against the bad teams."

St. Louis Blues
Defeat Bruins, 2-0

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The St. Louis Blues, trying to prove this season they still can win the revised West Division, proved a few other things Thursday night—that Boston still can be scored on and that the Bruins still can be beaten at home.

The Blues surprised the defending Stanley Cup champions 2-0 on Frank St. Marselles goal late in the second period and the shutout goaltending of Glenn Hall and Ernie Wakely.

Willie's Dillies

By BILL MCGAFFNEY
Herald Sports Editor

This is an open letter to the Circleville High School Tigers.

The time has come for all of us to let you know that we are extremely proud of you and your achievements.

Not only for the fine 8-0 record you have compiled and the state recognition you have brought to the school and the town, but we are proud of you as fine young men who are a credit to the community.

You have played the game hard and clean and we have not seen one instance where your conduct has been anything but honorable. The manner in which you have behaved on the gridiron has brought nothing but praise from the people who have seen you perform.

The South Central Ohio League championship has come back to Circleville through your efforts and the community thanks you for it.

Although the league is over you still have two ball games to go and we feel you can put both of them in the win column. You have become a proud team which is an asset as you must have pride in yourself and your job if you are going to be successful.

You are successful... the town is proud of you... and grateful to you.

All the best,
Willie

Our little gem of information — Eddie LeBaron, Washington Redskins quarterback, threw the shortest pass in pro football history. He completed the pass on Oct. 9, 1960 and it covered a distance of two inches. Needless to say it happened on the goal line and was good for a touchdown.

Our "fearless" forecast — Circleville will make it 9-0 with one to go against Franklin Heights... Teays Valley will beat the Lions of Court House in their own den... Logan Elm will annihilate Adena... Westfall will send the Bearcats of Paint Valley into hibernation... Michigan State will rip Purdue... Buckeyes of Ohio State will really "Badger" Wisconsin... Slippery Rock to crush Clarion State... Bengals to "Buffalo" the Bills... Vikings over the Redskins... Dolphins to down the Eagles... Raiders to edge the Browns.

Until next time, have a nice day — be a good sport.

By MIKE RATHET

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Football League's week-end program includes nine games which will have a bearing on first place—and that makes it a critical schedule.

First place, however, is something this pro picker would have trouble locating. Last week's picks turned up a 7-5-1 record for 15-9-2 overall—and the fitters with so many critical games scheduled.

The key ones are Minnesota at Washington, Dallas at New York Giants, Cleveland at Oakland, Denver at San Diego, San Francisco at Chicago, Atlanta at Los Angeles, Detroit at New Orleans, Boston at St. Louis and Houston at Kansas City.

Here, theoretically, is how it will all turn out (Sunday games unless otherwise noted):

Minnesota 31, Washington 21—Vikings lead NFC Central and have allowed only 56 points in seven games. Redskins' defense improving, but Vikings playing as if they're invincible with Gary Cuozzo taking firm hold at quarterback.

Dallas 27, New York Giants 24—Giants, one back of Cowboys and Cardinals, suffer let-down after emotional victory over crosstown rival Jets. And Mild weather will continue into Saturday with afternoon high reaching into the 60s over much of the state.

A new mass of cooler air is now poised over the Canadian Rockies and prairies and will be approaching Ohio Saturday and possibly move into the state Saturday night and Sunday.

—FORECASTS—
OHIO — Mostly clear and cool tonight, lows in the 30s. Variable cloudiness and mild Saturday, highs mid 50s north-west to mid 60s southeast.

NORTHWEST INLAND, WEST LAKE SHORE, WEST CENTRAL — Mostly fair and cool tonight, lows in the upper 30s. Variable cloudiness with little temperature change Saturday, highs in the mid and upper 50s. Sunday partly cloudy and cooler.

Build Up Fight
By Ali, Bonavena

NEW YORK (AP)—The buildup is on for the Muhammad Ali-Oscar Bonavena heavyweight fight Dec. 7 at Madison Square Garden.

Although the undefeated former heavyweight champion figures to be at least a 3-1 favorite over the six-times beaten Argentine bull, he has declared to the world that Bonavena "is a strong, dangerous fighter, the toughest I've ever had to meet."

This came up at a press luncheon Thursday to announce the fight when Ali, also known as Cassius Clay, was asked if he regarded the fight with Bonavena as a tuneup.

Top College Teams Face Action

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
"Our game plan is to hang on." With that, Baylor Coach Bill Beall sends his game-but-outgunned Bears against the No. 1 college football team in the country Saturday at Waco, Tex.

The Texas Longhorns are the leading ground team in the nation and own the land's longest winning streak of 26. Only other longer major college football strings are by Michigan State (28) in the early 1950s and Oklahoma's streaks of 31 and 47.

Beall says Baylor must eliminate mistakes to keep from being blown out of the stadium by powerful Texas, which holds a 44-11-4 series record, including the last 12 in a row.

Everything also looks bright this weekend for Notre Dame and Ohio State, the nation's second and third-ranked teams, and, of course, No. 6 Stanford.

Notre Dame is expected to have little trouble with visiting Pittsburgh. Ohio State has the toughest test of the top three and the Buckeyes are a two-touchdown choice over Wisconsin at Madison.

Stanford, however, could have a thorny day in a regionally televised game against visiting Washington, but the Indians can step into the Rose Bowl with a victory, and that should provide quite an incentive.

Texas, Notre Dame and Ohio State have been battling all season for that No. 1 ranking, and the Longhorns and Irish also seem to be moving toward another Cotton Bowl meeting.

Notre Dame is supposed to have a tacit agreement to go to the Orange Bowl this year but another shot at Texas could make Coach Ara Parseghian prefer Dallas to Miami on New Year's Day.

The Buckeyes look like a shoo-in as the Big Ten's representative in the Rose Bowl with chief rival Michigan ineligible after a visit last January.

Michigan, No. 5 and tied with Ohio State for the big Ten lead at 4-0, seems to have an easy task against visiting Illinois.

In fact, the only team other than Stanford in the Top Ten with a tough time would appear to be unbeaten Air Force, No. 9, which must travel to a rugged Oregon team that is seeking revenge for a 60-13 whipping by the Falcons last year.

No. 4 Nebraska is an over-whelming favorite against Iowa State as the Cornhuskers close in on the Big Eight crown; Arkansas No. 7, ushers lightly regarded Rice into Fayetteville; No. 8 Tennessee travels to South Carolina, and No. 10 Auburn plays at night against Mississippi State in Birmingham, Ala.

In the other television game, No. 11 Louisiana State travels to Birmingham in an afternoon clash with No. 19 Alabama and Purdue plays at Michigan State.

The Stanford-Washington affair promises to be a battle of quarterbacks with Jim Plunkett, a top Heisman Trophy candidate, leading the Indians against Sonny Sixkiller and the Huskies, one of four teams with two conference losses and a mathematical chance to catch Stanford.

In the top game among the rest of the Top Twenty, No. 18 Houston plays at No. 13 Mississippi. Elsewhere, No. 12 Arizona State entertains San Jose State at night, No. 14 San Diego State travels to Pacific at night, No. 15 Toledo hosts Northern Illinois at night, No. 17 Dartmouth is at home to Columbia and No. 20 Syracuse travels to Army. All are heavy favorites, No. 16 UCLA is idle.

Wooster, Wittenberg Meet Saturday In Race For Title

By GEORGE STRODE
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—This business of playing for league football championships is something new for Wooster, but for Wittenberg it's old hat.

The two, which meet Saturday at Wooster, are sharing the Ohio Conference lead with Capital. They also represent half of the Ohio college unbeaten, Ohio State and Toledo being the other duo.

A Wittenberg triumph could earn the Tigers at least a share of their seventh league crown in the last 10 seasons.

Wooster, on the other hand, has won the Ohio Conference title only once in the last 36 years—in 1959.

It's the 1970 league windup for the Tigers. The Scots still have a date at Oberlin next week before they can touch off an unaccustomed title celebration.

Capital, 4-0 like Wittenberg to Wooster's 5-0 in the league, plays at Baldwin-Wallace in another important conference test.

In other Ohio Conference games, Kenyon is at Hiram, Oberlin at Ohio Wesleyan, Heidelberg at Muskingum and Denison at Otterbein in a night pairing.

Ohio State, which has won 28 of its last 29 contests including six in a row this season, visits Wisconsin. The Buckeyes attempt to preserve their Big Ten lead with Michigan and stay on the track toward the Rose Bowl.

Toledo already has assured itself of a Tangerine Bowl spot with its second successive Mid-American Conference title. The Rockets risk their 19-game winning streak, a Mid-American record, in a non-leaguer against visiting Northern Illinois Saturday night.

Defiance, king of the Mid-Ohio Conference for the third straight season, winds up its campaign, shooting for an 8-1 record with a home triumph over Anderson, Ind.

Gary Kosins tries to regain his national rushing lead when Dayton visits Miami for their annual neighborhood struggle. Northern Illinois halted Kosins on 59 yards last week and he dropped to second place. He still leads the national scoring leaders with 14.6 points a game.

Toledo has retained its scoring defense lead (6.0 points per game); and Ohio State Safetyman Mike Sensibaugh has leapt to the top in interception returns nationally with 1.2 per game.

Only one Mid-American game is on tap, Ohio University at Bowling Green. Cincinnati is at North Texas State, the Quantico Marines at Xavier and Kent State at Marshall.

In other games Saturday, Mount Union is at Ohio Northern, West Virginia Wesleyan at Marietta, John Carroll at Findlay, Ashland at Waynesburg, Bluffton at Central State, Wilmington at Washington and Jefferson, Coast Guard Academy at Case Western Reserve and Akron at Youngstown in a night game.

Predict Vikings Will Overturn Redskins

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—The National Football League's week-end program includes nine games which will have a bearing on first place—and that makes it a critical schedule.

First place, however, is something this pro picker would have trouble locating. Last week's picks turned up a 7-5-1 record for 15-9-2 overall—and the fitters with so many critical games scheduled.

The key ones are Minnesota at Washington, Dallas at New York Giants, Cleveland at Oakland, Denver at San Diego, San Francisco at Chicago, Atlanta at Los Angeles, Detroit at New Orleans, Boston at St. Louis and Houston at Kansas City.

Here, theoretically, is how it will all turn out (Sunday games unless otherwise noted):

Minnesota 31, Washington 21—Vikings lead NFC Central and have allowed only 56 points in seven games. Redskins' defense improving, but Vikings playing as if they're invincible with Gary Cuozzo taking firm hold at quarterback.

Dallas 27, New York Giants 24—Giants, one back of Cowboys and Cardinals, suffer let-down after emotional victory over crosstown rival Jets. And Mild weather will continue into Saturday with afternoon high reaching into the 60s over much of the state.

A new mass of cooler air is now poised over the Canadian Rockies and prairies and will be approaching Ohio Saturday and possibly move into the state Saturday night and Sunday.

—FORECASTS—
OHIO — Mostly clear and cool tonight, lows in the 30s. Variable cloudiness and mild Saturday, highs mid 50s north-west to mid 60s southeast.

NORTHWEST INLAND, WEST LAKE SHORE, WEST CENTRAL — Mostly fair and cool tonight, lows in the upper 30s. Variable cloudiness with little temperature change Saturday, highs in the mid and upper 50s. Sunday partly cloudy and cooler.

Build Up Fight
By Ali, Bonavena

NEW YORK (AP)—The buildup is on for the Muhammad Ali-Oscar Bonavena heavyweight fight Dec. 7 at Madison Square Garden.

Although the undefeated former heavyweight champion figures to be at least a 3-1 favorite over the six-times beaten Argentine bull, he has declared to the world that Bonavena "is a strong, dangerous fighter, the toughest I've ever had to meet."

This came up at a press luncheon Thursday to announce the fight when Ali, also known as Cassius Clay, was asked if he regarded the fight with Bonavena as a tuneup.

through another upheaval with Coach Clive Rush replaced by John Mazur. St. Louis sent Coach Wally Lemm reeling in 44-0 victory over Houston last week.

Kansas City 28, Houston 13—Chiefs haven't exactly been a ball of fire this season, but Ed Podolak seems to give the running game more steam every week. Super Bowl Chiefs 3-1 and can't afford another defeat.

Miami 17, Philadelphia 14—This may be the Eagles' best shot to win one this season, but here's a guess the Dolphins will bounce back after two successive shutouts.

New York Jets 24, Pittsburgh 20—Al Woodall coming on as Jets' quarterback. Pitt glamour-guy Terry Bradshaw barking at club now. That doesn't help.

Buffalo 28, Cincinnati 21—O.J. Simpson coming off his best ground gaining performance for Bills while Bengals, weakened by injuries, having trouble scoring.

Baltimore 31, Green Bay 28 (Monday)—A tussle for the Colts, but they're protecting first place in AFC East and riding five-game winning streak. Don Horn may be at quarterback for Packers.

Weather's Pleasant

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Pleasant autumn weather spread over almost the entire nation from the Rockies to the Appalachians today, but a persistent chill lingered in parts of the south.

Light rain dampened sections of the Pacific Northwest and the adjacent Rockies, and cold rain or snow fell on some interior portions of the Northeast.

Temperatures again dipped into the frosty 30s in scattered areas from Kentucky and North Carolina to Alabama and Georgia. Readings were not as low as the past two mornings, however.

A general warmup in the mid-continent boosted the mercury into the 50s and 60s Thursday throughout the northern Rockies, Great Plains and parts of the Midwest. The milder weather spread eastward during the night.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 21 at Alamosa, Colo., to 67 at Needles, Calif.

Lack Of Doctors Ends Emergency House Call Plan

CHICAGO (AP) — A doctors group which for 18 years arranged emergency house calls has voted unanimously to discontinue the service.

Dr. Robert Mustell, 76, who organized the doctors' emergency service of the Chicago Medical Society—and in some years made more than 500 emergency calls himself—said a shortage of general practitioners was the main cause for abandoning the service.

"We can't give people the help they need," Mustell said. "Unless we are given some doctors to give us a hand, there's nothing more I can do."

Mustell blamed increasing specialization among young doctors.

Mustell, who was voted the outstanding general practitioner in Illinois in 1956, said he wrote to 135 members of the Chicago Medical Society in 1968 on behalf of the doctors' emergency service and found only 10 willing to serve. He said he checked with the 10 a year later and found that not one had made an emergency call.

The panel once had 290 doctors and answered calls to homes, trains, planes, offices and on the street. Now 40 doctors participate in the emergency service out of 6,000 in the Chicago Medical Society.

"Most of the doctors have moved to the suburbs," Mustell said. "Another problem has been the changing character of neighborhoods and the danger to the doctor."

A spokesman for the Chicago Medical Society said the need for the emergency service had lessened because hospitals now are required to have emergency wards.

A spokesman for the American Medical Association commented that most physicians "feel they can provide better care in a hospital emergency room, where they have all the diagnostic equipment, than on a house call."

Village Orderly During Halloween

Stoutsville Village was orderly during the Halloween season, according to village council notes. Mayor Goble Branham thanked those responsible for maintaining order. Only one case of vandalism was reported.

Village solons in regular session Monday voted to buy a radio for the police cruiser and to purchase and erect street signs and posts.

The mayor presided at the session with Gail Goldsberry, Neil Kern, James Lovett, Lloyd Meyer, Ellsworth Wright, Art Timmons and Clerk Mary E. Meyer present.

Saturday Evening Post Will Return

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Saturday Evening Post is being resurrected with a nostalgic old Norman Rockwell illustration on its first cover—though the 70-year-old artist says his rosy-cheeked little girls and spotted mongrel dogs no longer typify America.

Curtis Publishing Co. announced Thursday the magazine would be back on the newsstands as a quarterly next spring.

Beurt Servaas, Curtis president, said the new Post, like its predecessor, would be aimed at Middle America, which used to dot on Rockwell's covers.

The artist himself told an interviewer Thursday his folksy, nostalgic drawings are out of date. Recently he has been illustrating racial themes and the war on poverty.

"I was able in the past to reflect the country's mood in my work," Rockwell said. "But now questions are so bitter and nothing is clear cut."

"Today paintings about the racial question, about drugs and Vietnam are in demand. There are no easy answers to these questions."

"I would like to illustrate the generation gap, but I haven't worked out how to do it yet."

What happened to the American Rockwell used to portray?

"I'm no philosopher but I guess we swept everything—racial problems, drug use and the generation gap—under the rug for years," he said.

About 500,000 copies of the new Post will be printed. When publication stopped 22 months ago due to lack of advertising, it had three million subscribers, less than half its circulation high.

The Post traces its origin to 1728 and Benjamin Franklin. Cyrus H. K. Curtis bought it for $1,000 in 1897 and built it into one of the nation's most successful magazines.

Treasurer - Elect Moves Cautiously

By JEFF PRICE
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Democrat Gertrude W. Donahy, state treasurer-elect, swept to victory pledging to "invest the money of the people of Ohio in secure investments."

But, in an extremely heated campaign, she chose not to harp on the state loan scandal that helped defeat Treasurer John D. Herbert in the attorney general's race and her opponent State Sen. Robin T. Turner.

Mrs. Donahy, the first woman elected to state office in Ohio, said she did not know how much the loan episode helped her 300,000-vote margin.

"I am sure, though, it had something to do with all the Democratic victories," she said.

Logan Elm Riding Club Discusses Recent Ride

The Logan Elm Riding Club met at the home of Vicky West Oct. 26.

The September trail ride was discussed. They discussed how to rest horses and the problems of a sick horse on a trail ride.

The number of meetings each member is required to attend each year was discussed.

A trail ride at Sue Montgomery's home was planned for Nov. 8 at 9 a.m. for club members only.

The following reports were assigned for the next meeting: Elizabeth Schumm, English saddle; Joyce LaFontaine, hunter; and Cynthia Palm, western saddle.

"because people were concerned."

Profits from the commercial paper transactions at the heart of the loan tangle, said Mrs. Donahy, might have been reaped from investments in the more secure U.S. Treasury notes.

"When you invest state funds, you invest them where you can make the most for the people of Ohio," she said. "The law says you may invest in commercial paper, not that you have to."

Mrs. Donahy said she questioned the law authorizing such transactions when it was passed in 1967, long before she had given any thought to running for office.

She said she would honor a freeze put on commercial paper purchases by the treasurer's office last summer, until she has studied the investment program after taking office Jan. 11.

Mrs. Donahy views the treasurer as "primarily a keeper of the state's funds," but said making a profit for the state is equally important.

She said she favors investments in U.S. Treasury notes and bonds and in government securities.

The trim, attractive treasurer-elect said many people came to her during the campaign to say it was time a woman was elected to state office.

"Many other states have women in office, and Ohio is a progressive state," said Mrs. Donahy, who lives in Columbus.

It is difficult to follow the many factions in the women's liberation movement, she said, but Mrs. Donahy has encouraged women to work together for better day care centers for children of mother's who must work.

By "better" centers, Mrs. Donahy said she meant they should be more than just custodial.

The 62-year-old executive assistant to retiring U.S. Senator Stephen Young is a graduate of Ohio Business College. She has worked in the finance division of the Ohio adjutant general's office.

The bulk of her government experience, however, came after her marriage to John W. Donahy in 1930. She was an active participant in her late husband's bid for the U.S. Senate and for state treasurer.

Mrs. Donahy shared the speaking chores and said she always campaigned for the whole Democratic ticket.

Then, when John Donahy became Ohio's lieutenant governor in 1959, she served without pay as his assistant for four years.

Her father-in-law, Vic Donahy, was a former three-term Ohio governor and a U.S. Senator from 1935 to 1940.

"He was brilliant and astute, and I learned much from him," Mrs. Donahy said.

She laughed when recalling the late governor was widely known as "Veto Vic" for his frequent rebuffs of the largely Republican legislatures from 1922-28.

Vic Donahy was also tagged the "watchdog of the treasury" while auditor in the early 1920s. Mrs. Donahy aims to be equally observant.

"My aim is to be the best treasurer the state of Ohio ever had," she said. "I will be careful and cautious."
